A male Red-headed Woodpecker (Aegolops phoeniceus) is perched on a thick, weathered tree branch. The bird is facing right, with its head turned slightly upwards. It has a bright red forehead and crown, a grey face with a black stripe through the eye, and a black beak. Its back is a mix of olive green and yellow, with a greyish-brown patch on the wing. The underparts are white with black spots. The background is a soft-focus green forest.
